June Sale of Linens, White Goods and Embroideries

First, it is a sale that has quality for its theme, not some make-believe quality, but quality that will tell in the wear, quality that is easily recognized. It is a sale we've been planning-to make it the best we've ever held -and even if

We can offer the greatest stocks we've ever assembled for any June sale we've ever held it would gratify us very little if we didn't know that in every case the qualities are the same or better, the assortments wider, the prices lower or, in spite of conditions, as low as any we have ever quoted.

ALFALFA FIELD MEETING

The growing of this wonderful crop has been given much attention during the past few years all over the coun-It has been demonstrated over Almon Eastman was in Youngstown and over again that alfalfa can be grown successfully on nearly every type of soil in existence, though it is much better adapted to the lighter types which have good natural drainage and plenty of lime. When the naturally adapted soils are not available, artificial means can be employed which will bring about profitable results.

> A number of Mahoning county farmers have tried to produce alfalfa, some succeeding, many failing. In order to can ince those who are skeptical in regard to the matter of grow ing this crop, you are invited to a field meeting on the farm of Hugh Bonnell, one and card of Boardman Center Francy afternoon, June 11, at four o'clock, eastern time. Here you will have an opportunity to see a field which produced over five tons per acre last year and promises to produce two and one-half tons per acre the first cutting this year, Mr. Bonnell will tell just what has been done to get the resutls he has obtained. This meeting should be esecially interesting to dairymen, most whom already know the value of alfalfa as a milk producing feed. D. W. Galehouse, County Agent for Mahoning county, will be present at this meeting and will be glad to assist any one who would like to try a small piece of alfalfa this summer.

Under the Old Plum Tree Governor Willis of Ohio seems to be orrying because his request for the esignations of certain democratic officials of that state has not been heeded. Why should they resign? Are'nt their titles just as good as his? There is no complaint of neglect of duty or of incapacity on their part. But they are democrats, and the governor wants them to get out so he can give their places to some of his republican friends. It would be the right thing to wait until they have finished their terms. The people are not nearly so partisan in matters of state and local government as the politicians. The latter want all the offices they can get and as fast as they can get them. This is what they are specifically in poli-tics for. Otherwise the public welfare would but little concern most of them. When the lawful terms of the demo-cratic state officials of Ohio legally expire the incumbents will of course relinquish them. In time the plums will duly fall into the laps of the governor's friends. Keep partisanship in the background.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

PATRIOTISM IN NAPERY.

The Custom is Spreading and the National Colors Used in Many Ways. Many wealthy women of New York are having the coat-of-arms of the city stamped on their tablecloths and napkins. Outside the city "smart" hosteses engrave the State shield on their table linen. The custom is spreading, and the national colors are coming into use for the same pur-Mrs. Claude Swanson, wife of the former Governor of Virginia, has her plate glass and napery marked with the shield of the Old Dominion. All the linen in the White House is marked with the great seal familiar in State Department documents, but not until this year were the national colors used for that purpose. Dresden effects for the table appear as popular as for the gowns. All the foreign establishments in Washingon have their linen their national emblems. Gun Discharged by Centrifugal Force. An English inventor, living in New York, has devised a powderless rapidfire gun which resembles a cylindrical pencil-sharpener or a meat chopper more than it does a weapon of warfare. All there is to it is a big wheel with a crank revolving it. In the 10-inch model this can be turned by hand. Balls of lead or steed are poured into the machine, the operator revolves the wheel, the bullets are drawn in by a vacuum and pour out in a steady stream. The idea was formulated after seeing a flywheel burst and noting the force with which its parts were thrown,

Names From Musical Instruments. A correspondent reports the finding a decidedly curious name in one of the records of York during the reign of Elizabeth-Marmaduke Clarionett. It sounds like a character in a latterday burlesque.

In present day directories names suggested by musical instruments, such as Bugler, Trumpeter and Hornblower are to be met with, but the York family of Clarionette had no known representative in the England of today. Presumably Trumpet, the name of one of the most famous of the Australian cricketers, is a contraction from Trumpeter.

Second Point of Difference. The second point of difference is as to the course which should be pursued in re-an American citizen has a right, under international law, to travel on a belligerent ship; the question is whether he ought not, out of consideration for his country, if not for his own safety, avoid danger when avoidance is possible.

It is a very one-sided citizenship that compels a government to go to war over a citizen's rights and yet relieve the citizen of all obligations to consider his nation's welfare. I do not know just how far the president can legally go in actually preventing Americans from traveling

But even if the government could not legally prevent citizens from traveling on belligerent ships, it could, and in my judgment should, carnestly advise American citizens not to risk themselves or the peace of their country, and I have no doubt that these warnings would be

Passengers and ammunition should not travel together. The attempts to prevent American citizens from incurring these risks is entirely consistent with the effort which our government is making to prevent attacks from submarines.

The use of one remedy does not exclude the use of the other. The most familiar lilustration is to be found in the action taken by municipal authorities dur riot. It is the duty of the mayor to sup-press the mob and to prevent violence,

The president does not feel justified in taking the action above stated. That is, he does not feel justified, first in suggesting the submission of the controversy to investigation, or second, in warning the peaple not to incur the extra hazards in traveling on belligerent ships or on ships carrying ammunition. And he may be right in the position he has taken, but as a private citizen I am free to urge both right in the position he has taken, but as a private citizen I am free to urge both of these propositions and to call public attention to these remedies is order to secure an expression of public sentiment to aid the president in employing these remedies. The father put down the paper he was reading and replied: "Why, it merely means a classic outline." The mother took a hand, declaring the answer was too short, and really a shifty euphemism. "Give our son long and clear answer," she insisted.

Paterfamilias sat up and made this lucid, ornate reply: "A Greek profile is a bold silhouette blending the Doric and Ionian expressions and depicting that clear-cut, plastic work of Praxiteles, which i entirely free from the rococo renais sance school, and which, in modern melodrama, would be called the marble face." Both mother and son took the count, and father resumed his reading of the article, "Why Oysters Have Strong

Washington, June 10 .- Just as the new American note to Germany was started on its way over the telegraph wires, Mr. Bryan at his home gave out this statement of his position: My reason for resigning is clearly stated in my letter of resignation, namely, that I may employ as a private citizen the means which the president does not feel at liberty to employ. I honor him for doing what he believes to be right, and I am sure that he desires, as I do, to find a penceful solution of the problem which has been created by the action of the submarines.

Two of the points on which we differ,

I believe that this nation should frankly state to Germany that we are willing to apply in this case the principle which we are bound by treaty to apply to disputes between the United States and 30 countries with which we have made treatles providing for investigation of all disputes of every character and nature.

These treatles, negotiated under this administration, made war practically impossible between this country and these 30 governments, representing nearly three-fourths of all the people of the world.

Among the nations with which we have these treatles are Great Britain, France and Russia. No matter what disputes may arise between us and these treaty nations, we agree that there shall be no declaration and no commencement of hostilities until the matters in dispute have been investigated by an international comjingoes who are demanding war. Germany has always been a friendly nation and a great many of our people are of German ancestry. Why should we not deal with Germany according to this plan to which the nation has pledged its support?
